

Aimee Art Productions

Building Self-Esteem and Literacy Through the Arts

Aimee Young Hopkins, Artistic Director
2433 E. Glenoaks Blvd.
Glendale, CA 91206
(323) 244-8886

www.aimeeartproductions.com
aimeeartproductions@gmail.com

Offerings:

* Theatre, Music, Dance, Visual Art and Interdisciplinary Workshops
For Ages Preschool through 12th Grade, also Parent-and-Me for infants & toddlers

- Private, Semi-Private and Small Group Lessons in every instrument including Piano, Voice, Strings, Guitar, Flute, Recorder and Percussion
- Large-Scale Theatre Productions and School Performances
- Assemblies, Professional Development and Workshops for Teachers and Students
- Harlem Renaissance Packages for Black History Month

 Our Gourmet Menu of Arts Classes is available upon request*

Rates:

- $50-$100 per teaching hour or $4-$7 per child per class at your school, home or non-profit depending on distance, number of children and number of classes
- $600-$800 per 8-week after-school class – depending on materials and Teaching Artist (1 hour per week)
- $2000-$5000 for large-scale theatre production meeting twice a week for 10 weeks
- Flexible pricing for schools and families (Per child rates also available)

Class Sizes:

- Maximum 15 students for after-school classes or 30 for in-school
- 40-50 students for large-scale productions

Aimee Art Productions:
Building Self-Esteem and Literacy Through the Art

MISSION STATEMENT: We strive to bring quality, enriching, multicultural experiences to the youth of Los Angeles through Theatre, Music, Dance and Visual Art.

About Our Artistic Director

Aimee Young Hopkins, M.A. and California Credentialed Teacher, has worked extensively in literacy and arts education since 1988. Originally from Rhode Island, Aimee achieved her B.A. Magna Cum Laude from Middlebury College in Vermont and her M.A. in Theatre from Trinity Rep Conservatory in Rhode Island. Holding both the Multiple Subject Teaching Credential and the Crosscultural, Language and Academic Development (CLAD) Certificate, Aimee received the prestigious “Golden Apple Award” from LA Unified School District in 2002. Aimee has taught English in Latin America and toured the U.S. as an Artist-in-Residence. Before settling in Los Angeles, she won First Place in Rhode Island's NATS (National Association for Teachers of Singing) Vocal Competition and several honors at the Solo/Ensemble Competition for Vocal Music. Since coming to the west coast, Aimee has performed in musical theatre and in her own musical one-woman shows and original plays. With her company, Aimee Art Productions and with the Music Center of Los Angeles, Aimee continues to offer quality arts instruction at schools and non-profits throughout the Los Angeles area. She is passionate about using the arts as a tool to build literacy and self-esteem and about sharing her expertise with classroom teachers and families.

Aimee Young Hopkins, Artistic Director
(323) 244-8886
aimeeartproductions@gmail.com
www.aimeeartproductions.com